SPEED CHUTES

> Head up, shoulders low

Work on firing off the line and proper hitting. Then halfway through the chute — climb and drive. Throughout the entire drill, the head is up without the danger of bumping into a crossbar.

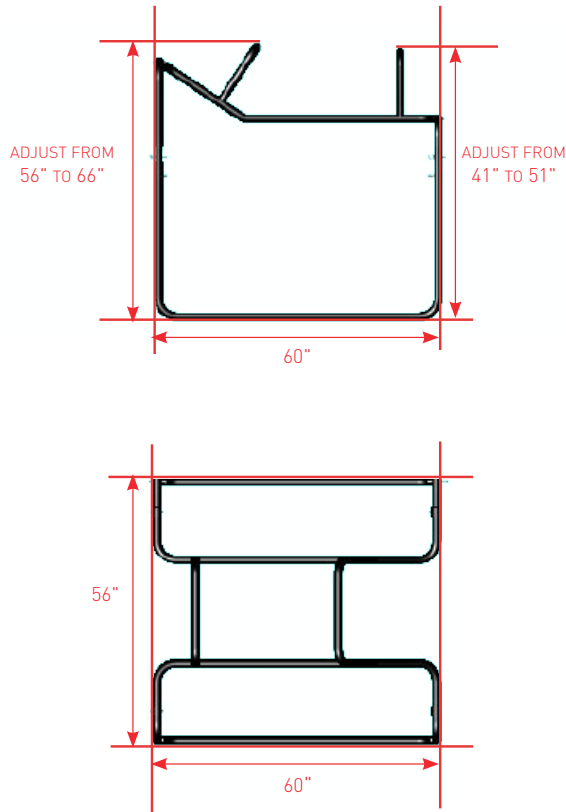

THE FACTS:

- ★ Eliminate the tendency players have to drop their chin during chute drills.
- ★ The Speed Chute's unique arched tubing is designed to keep player's shoulders low yet allowing their heads to be unrestricted.

>>> Constructed of hefty 2" diameter steel tubing the height of the Speed Chute™ can be set between 41" and 51" without using any tools.

POWER. SKILL. VICTORY.

Classic

BOARD SET

Others may imitate – but nobody duplicates – the classic Rogers T-Board Set.

Drill a wide-based stance and keep players in good football position.

- ★ The Board's beveled edges minimize the risk of sprains and bruises.
- ★ Cleats will not slip on T-Board surface.
- ★ Solid, rubber-like Boards won't warp or splinter.
- ★ Unlike boards, the dense semi-rigid urethane foam conforms to the surface of the practice field.
- ★ Heavy enough that they stay in place and don't need straightening after each drill.

The T-Board set consists of the 8' Board plus a shorter section that butts up to it to form a "T." It helps players maintain their balance by not overstriding on the first step, and to lift – not drag – their foot on the second step, creating a stronger, more balanced blocking base.
